Get to know all the charms of Kojima

Kojima Walking Course

Kojima is the birthplace of made-in-Japan jeans, and the district of Ajino, in the heart of Kojima, is where you'll find Jeans Street, an up-and-coming tourist destination situated along a shotengai (covered shopping street). Jeans Street is lined with stores operated directly by local jeans manufacturers as well as souvenir shops and more besides. Take a look around the Former Nozaki Residence to discover the history of the area, which was originally developed as a salt field. This walking course gives you an intimate sense of how local industry has changed over time.

2 BIG JOHN Kojima Honten

Make BIG JOHN your first stop when you arrive at Jeans Street. Founded in 1940, this company became the first to sell entirely made-in-Japan jeans in 1965. Today, the store offers an incredible range of products. You can try a number of hands-on experiences, such as learning how to attach leather labels and buttons, denim processing, indigo dyeing, and adding images to fabric using laser irradiation. This is a store where you can relax and take your time—and even help yourself to a free drink.

4 Former Nozaki Residence

The family home of Nozaki Buzaemon, who made his fortune developing salt fields during the late Edo period. The residence is designated a national Important Cultural Property. Set in expansive grounds of some 9,900m², the estate comprises buildings with a total area of some 1,100m², including an omote-shoin (front reception hall), an omoya (main residence), three chashitsu (tearooms), and dozo-gun (group of storehouses), and elegant dry landscaped gardens. Many historical materials, folk articles, and cultural assets are on display throughout the residence. Thanks to the achievements of the Nozaki family, salt became the primary industry of Kojima. Salt is white, as are cotton and the flesh of sand lance eels, the other key industries in the Kojima area; this is the origin of the phrase kojima sanpaku, the three Kojima whites.

5 Momotaro Jeans

Momotaro Jeans is the first brand in the world to use denim fabric made with 100% premium Zimbabwean cotton. Its rich indigo colors come from the world's highest concentration of indigo dye. The company's origins as a denim fabric manufacturer allow it to realize its very particular product vision. As the honten (flagship store), this store also sells limited edition and exclusive goods and limited edition colors, and even offers customers the chance to create one-off originals.

6 Chikurin

A long-standing restaurant with a retro look serving up authentic yoshoku cuisine (Western-influenced Japanese dishes). They are impressively committed to making everything by hand and in-house, down to their sauces, dressings, and even the mayonnaise. That's probably why the dishes here stand out as so aromatic and deeply flavored! The portions are very generous, too.

Must-have Denim Goods

It's not surprising that denim-themed goods are all the rage on Jeans Street. Here are some of our top picks for obsessive and innovative denim-inspired products!

Made with indigo powder!

Indigo soft serve icecream created for Kojima

RIVETS

Indigo may be best known as a dye for denim fabric, but that same indigo is also a health food with an outstanding antioxidant effect. This indigo soft serve is generously topped with Japan-grown powdered indigo. It has a refreshing salted vanilla flavor, inspired by the area's three main industries, as encapsulated in the phrase kojima sanpaku (the three Kojima whites: cotton, salt, and sand lance eels).
